GENERAL TRAVEL INFO

Weather, Falls & When To Go

One of the most iconic Natural Wonders of the world is Victoria Falls, known locally as Mosi-oa-Tunya translating into 'The Smoke That Thunders'. Whilst exploring this unique land back in 1852 and 1856, Dr. David Livingstone named the falls after the reigning British monarch at the time; Queen Victoria. This UNESCO World Heritage Site has the largest curtain of falling water in the world, over 1708 m wide and up to 500 million liters of water cascades over the basalt rocks per minute at certain times of the year. There are 8 spectacular gorges that the water flows over and there are several islands in the core zone that serve as breeding sites for endangered and migratory bird species, including the Taita Falcon.

December - March

Better known as the 'Emerald Season' these are the rainy months around Livingstone and also the height of summer. The mighty Zambezi River will slowly start rising from January and the falls itself will begin to pick up in power. Dramatic thunderstorms are present some afternoons. The weather is hot and humid, with temperatures reaching well over 30 °C in the daytime. The white-water rafting season usually closes around February due to high water levels and the famous Livingstone Island and Devil's Pool often close in January/February due to the dangerously high water levels.

April – June

The Falls is at its fullest at this time of the year. This is also the only time of year that the Lunar Rainbow can be viewed at its best. The spectacle lasts from sunset to sunrise and is one of Africa's best kept secrets. During these months the Zambezi is in flood and the Falls are at their most magnificent however visibility on foot from some of the lookouts can be limited by the abundance of spray and mist. Temperatures during the day are warm at 25-30 °C. This is also the best time for a helicopter flight over the falls.

July – August

These months bring the peak season in Zambia, with lower water levels and less spray allowing for excellent visibility of the mighty falls. Activities such as Livingstone Island, rafting and devil's pools open again as soon as the water drops. Although this is peak wintertime, you can expect warm and sunny days 20-28 °C, but it's best to bring warm layers for the cool evening temperatures. These are also prime game viewing months nearby the Chobe National Park, Hwange and Mosi-o-Tunya.

September – November

These months mark the end of the dry season and this is when the falls are at their lowest, drying up to reveal the intricate rock formations. However, there is still excellent visibility from the Zimbabwe side where day trips and falls visits can be arranged from the lodge. This time of year is perfect for white-water river rafting and the Livingstone Island and is best booked in advance. The weather is very hot, averaging at around 35-40 °C. The game viewing is fantastic along Chobe River and its surrounds and in late October/November, the landscape starts to transform from an arid and golden land to a luscious green oasis.

Visas

Most countries' residents visiting Zambia will need a VISA upon entry and it can be bought at the border - please enquire if not sure as some countries have to get their visas from the Zambian Embassy in their country. Single entry will cost US$50 and double entry visa US$80 (needed if you want to go to Zimbabwe or Botswana and back to Zambia). The Kaza UNIVISA, (cost US$50) and is valid for a month between both Zambia and Zimbabwe and can also be used once for a day visit into Chobe, Botswana.

Malaria & Health

Before travelling, guests are encouraged to consult their local doctor on anti-malarial medication and vaccinations in preparation for their visit to Zambia. Insect repellent should also be utilized during your stay. A doctor's surgery is available in Livingstone and Taita Falcon Lodge is a member of an immediate medi-vac scheme for all of our clients provided they have their own travel insurance.
